

LEARN IDENTITY OF TIRE ROBBER; SEEK SOLDIER

Local state police today believed they had discovered the identity of the person who robbed Dale's tire shop of nine tires, a radio and a revolver on the night of February 14, but were still searching for the suspect, an AWOL soldier.

The police were led to suspect Frank Keleman, 21, Harrisburg, "awol" from the Indiantown Gap hospital since January 12, through the wrist watch of Frederick W. Shickley, 22, Harrisburg, which was found near the Dale tire shop the day after the tires were stolen. The wrist watch was found near two tires stolen from Harrisburg, which, it is believed, Keleman had thrown off his truck to make room for the tires he had stolen from the shop owned by Dale Lawver.

Shickley pleaded guilty Friday to two charges of automobile larceny and a charge of conspiracy to rob a Penbrook dry cleaning establishment at Harrisburg, but after investigation it was found that he could not have committed the robbery here on the night it occurred. From Shickley they learned that he had loaned his wrist watch to his friend, Keleman, who is also wanted for a number of robberies in the Harrisburg area.

Furnished Alibi

From military police who have been chasing Keleman since January, they learned that the M.P.'s have been following Shickley in order to find Keleman and that they followed Shickley from 3 p. m. February 14 to 3 a. m. February 15 in an effort to find the missing soldier. Men at a trucking concern which occasionally employs Shickley told the local police that Shickley had been at their office from 1 a. m. to 6 a. m. February 15, thus freeing him of suspicion of having part in the robbery of Dale's tire shop.

Shickley pleaded guilty to stealing tires from the car of A. E. Rivers, Harrisburg. Two of the tires stolen from that car were the two found near Dale's tire shop after the robbery here along with the wrist watch which apparently slipped off unnoticed.

The investigation is being conducted locally by Privates Harold Trout and Robert Deltrich of the state police. These officers have been working with Pvt. W. J. Stanton, now stationed at Harrisburg but formerly located at Gettysburg.

MARINE OFFICER, 'CANAL HERO, ON VISIT TO HOME

First Lieutenant Thomas F. Maitland, Littlestown, who was awarded the first Silver Star received by any Adams county soldier in World War II, is spending a 30-day leave of absence at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Maitland, Frederick street, Littlestown.

Maitland, who won his medal and a special citation in fighting on Guadalcanal in November and December of 1942, told a reporter for The Gettysburg Times today that he had not done "much of anything" after the Guadalcanal campaign but it developed in later questioning that he had taken part in the first assault on Bougainville island.

"That was a fairly simple operation," the Marine officer recalled. "After the first few days the only action we saw there was on patrol duty." Maitland came through 21 months of combat duty in the Pacific without a wound.

Going Back To Pacific

Lieutenant Maitland, who is 25 years old, was a second lieutenant when he "turned a disaster into an action in which the Marines seized the initiative," in the words of the citation that accompanied the Silver Star. The officer today modestly declined to elaborate on the sketchy outline of the Guadalcanal action contained in the official announcement of the honor given him. The Silver Star award was announced last April as tribute was paid to the "intrepidity, initiative and conspicuous gallantry" of the Littlestown officer.

Maitland was graduated from the Littlestown high school in 1935 and two years later enlisted in the Marines. His enlistment ended in 1941 but a few days after Pearl Harbor Maitland was back in the service with the Leathernecks and soon was sent overseas. He returned to this country, February 14, after 21 months of action in the Pacific. He goes back to San Diego at the end of his current furlough and expects to return to action in the Pacific.

In the 21 months of fighting in the Pacific area, he met only one man from his home town—Willis Collins whom he saw on a transport enroute to Bougainville for the invasion of that island stronghold of the Japs. Collins serves in the Seabees.

Allies Continue Aerial Blasting Of Reich Plants

By ALFRED WALL

Associated Press War Editor

The RAF hurled two great cargoes of bombs on the already flaming city of Augsburg last night, carrying through another cycle the massive Allied air offensive to wipe out Germany's warplane plants.

Hitting in "very great strength," the British Air Ministry's term denoting a maximum force, formations of Lancasters and Halifaxes loosed their fire bombs and explosives on the aerial engine production center 300 miles southwest of Berlin in the wake of daylight attack on the city by American Britain-based Fortresses yesterday.

The RAF struck with two distinct attacks, using again a new tactic employed successfully for the first time against Schweinfurt Thursday night.

Repulse Beachhead Assault

The Germans, who have kept up their pressure on the Allied beachhead south of Rome, were repulsed in the single Allied headquarters in Naples announced.

As the Allied air drive against the Reich gathered momentum and weight, Berlin announced Frankfurt also was hit last night and a Swiss radio report that night bombers had winged across Switzerland last night suggested Italy-based RAF bombers might again have joined in a two-way attack the same as the night before.

The RAF's night blows, which included Mosquito attacks on western Germany and cost a total of 24 planes, followed yesterday's unprecedented attack by Britain-based and Italy-based heavy bombers on Regensburg, one hundred and twenty German fighters were destroyed. Thirty-one of the American bombers lost were from Britain, the other 39 from Italy.

SENATOR McNARY DIES SUDDENLY; LED MINORITY

Washington, Feb. 26 (AP)—The slender thread of cooperation between the legislative and executive branches of the government—already worn fine by the revolt of Majority Leader Barkley (Ky.) against President Roosevelt's tax bill veto—was drawn taut today by the death of Minority Leader Charles L. McNary (Ore.).

McNary, who compromised and maneuvered many legislative bills originated by the Administration into a form acceptable to the Republican minority and anti-Roosevelt Democrats, died yesterday in an apartment at Ft. Lauderdale, Florida, where he had gone last December to recuperate from a brain tumor operation. He was 69.

The Republican leader who was his party's vice presidential candidate in 1940 apparently had been gaining strength recently, but death came unexpectedly at 3 p. m. yesterday at his apartment.

State Funeral

Mrs. McNary, who with their 8-year-old daughter was at his bedside when he died, was reported later to have suggested a state funeral. Senate attaches said that barring some other developments it probably would be held next Tuesday with Vice President Wallace presiding and the Rev. Frederick Brown Harris, the Senate Chaplain, delivering the memorial. Burial will be in Oregon, where McNary operated a large fruit ranch.

If the services are held then, a long time personal friend of McNary, President Roosevelt, probably will not be able to attend. The President is out of the city, resting from a "flu" attack.

It was this personal friendship between the President and the lounging, sandy haired westerner who headed the Senate's Republicans from 1933 down to date, that formed a tangible but little known link between the White House and Congress. It is a link that can not be reformed in a day.

McNary was consulted by the White House on many proposed bills that never saw the light of day in Congress as well as many that did.

The sometimes profane but almost always accurate analysis of the legislative lineup by Charles McNary, as he was affectionately known to all, served more than once to kill at the source some Administration legislative proposal. Conversely, if McNary said "Ok," White House brows lost their furrow.

McNary's death leaves the Senate Republicans up in the air. Only Thursday they reelected him chairman of their conference and leader. Prominent Republicans said nothing would be done officially about filling the job for at least two weeks. Senator White of Maine will continue to act in the meantime, but the way still is wide open for a decision on the major post.

NEARING CLIMAX IN GREAT AERIAL SMASH ON NAZIS

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press War Analyst)

We are rapidly approaching the climax of the Allied experiment to determine how close we can come to bombing Hitler into submission.

Less than a year ago British Prime Minister Churchill told a joint meeting of the Senate and House in Washington that the use of airpower by itself to bring about collapse of Germany had Italy was an "experiment . . . well worth trying, so long as other measures are not excluded." Since then we've let loose a crescendo of bombing which certainly contributed to Italy's collapse and now has reached a peak of intensity never before achieved—and it's rapidly increasing.

True, the Allied high command is preparing for the land invasion of western Europe on the theory that, when all's said and done, Hitler must be finished off in battle on the ground. We are depending on the aerial bombardment to pave the way for what Churchill describes as "the greatest joint operation between two allies that ever has been planned in history."

Climax Approaching
Still, while it's generally agreed that the invasion is essential if victory isn't to be unduly delayed, yet there can be small doubt that Allied fighting men of all categories are watching the outcome of the bombing experiment with tense interest. They're wondering how long Hitler's command can stand the round-the-clock assault which already has reached the frightful proportions of an upheaval of nature—like an earthquake.

I'm sure you'll understand I'm not predicting that Hitler will be knocked out by air alone. I'm saying that we are rushing towards the climax of the second big scale experiment of history to see how close air power can come to defeating a nation. The first effort was by Hitler in 1940-41, when he tried to blitz England into submission.

Unhappy Luftwaffe
The Fuehrer failed, and so exposed himself to the terror which is now sweeping the Reich. We cannot judge the present offensive by what he did, for the striking-power of the united Anglo-American air fleets far exceeds his greatest effort.

We have numerical superiority and this is rapidly increasing. Hitler's Luftwaffe, on the other hand, finally has reached that unhappy stage where U. S. strategic airforce headquarters in Britain is able to announce that the concentrated American air attacks on German aircraft factories have so reduced Nazi fighter production that every enemy plane shot down in combat now is a vital contribution toward knocking Germany's airforce out of action.

The vast importance which the Allies attach to the air in the present offensive and the coming amphibious invasion is clearly shown by the fact that Commander-in-Chief Eisenhower's deputy on the western front is Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Tedder. That's an unorthodox appointment, to say the least.

Double-Barrelled Drive
The stepped-up Allied air offensive is directed at all German war production and defenses in general, and at its warplane plants in particular. The immediate objective is to neutralize the Luftwaffe quickly as possible and so pave the way for invasion by land. The Allied air forces in the Mediterranean are entering into this by striking eastern Germany from Italian bases, thus putting the Reich under a cross-fire, so to speak.

The drive against the Nazi airforce is in two divisions. First, the Allies are hunting out every warplane factory and are destroying or crippling it. That's following the principle of destroying the wasp nest with the wasps in it. Secondly, they are bent on keeping the German airforce so constantly engaged that the Hitlerite pilots and ground forces will become exhausted. Also, of course, the Allies are intensively gunning to knock out enemy planes in combat, because of Hitler's difficulty in replacing them.

Here And There

News Collected At Random

On Christmas Day in 1821, the gift most joyously received by the four children of Stephen and Sarah Barton in their substantial colonial farmhouse in North Oxford, Massachusetts, was . . . a new sister! Destiny was on the march that Yuletide season and the newest member of the Barton family, named Clarissa Harlowe for the heroine of English Author Samuel Richardson's popular novel, was years later to be hailed as the "Angel of the Battlefields!"

Hers was a strange childhood, full of fear and timidity; she was truly happy only in the midst of her own family. A lecturing phrenologist visiting the Barton home, as did many a notable in those days, said, "She will never assert herself for herself, but for others she will be perfectly fearless!" It seems that fate had early decreed the road Clara Barton must travel.

At 16, she followed the example of her beloved brothers and sisters—she became a teacher! Some 15 years later, feeling the need for more education, Clara attended the Liberal Institute at Clinton, New York. Her mother's death at this time brought deep grief and when Mary Norton invited Clara to come with her to Bordentown, New Jersey, she readily accepted. Discovering that the village had no free school, Clara fought to establish one, only to lose it after struggling to build it up. They said it was "too large for a woman to supervise!"

Closer, ever closer, to her true destiny, Clara Barton's pathway led to Washington. Her valiant efforts in Bordentown left her weakened and she had trouble with her voice. A period of recuperation found her restless; she was not one to sit idle for long. Through her father's friend, Massachusetts Congressman Colonel DeWitt, she was appointed to a clerkship in the patent office. Inside of six months she had brought order out of chaos in her department, withstood the taunts and jeers of jealous male co-workers, won promotion. But her political leanings were contrary to the winning presidential candidate, Democrat James Buchanan, and in 1857 Clara Barton was forced to resign her post. Persevering brought her back to untangle the muddle as Buchanan's term expired.

Clara Barton's epic crusade was soon to begin. April 12, 1861—Fort Sumter fired upon the Confederates—Civil war! Recognizing the great need of the men, Clara plunged into the task of providing them with towels, handkerchiefs, blankets and food. Upon learning of the extreme suffering of the wounded before they could be brought from the field of battle to hospitals, it became Clara Barton's burning desire to be allowed to go to the scenes of action. "Let me go!" was her constant cry. And when, after her father's death, she finally won permission—how, no one knows—she carefully organized ways and means for getting supplies, then set out by wagon train for the war zone.

She followed the cannon from Cedar Mountain to Bull Run, Chantilly to Harpers Ferry, South Mountain, Fredericksburg, Antietam, Falmouth, Charleston, Richmond! In the face of constant danger . . . amid the hail of hot lead, she was there, bandaging the wounded, comforting the dying, feeding the hungry, clothing the naked! Untold hardship was the lot of this frail little woman whose only desire was to serve her country by aiding the brave men who struggled to preserve the Union.

Appomattox saw the war's end and Clara Barton returned to Washington. Not content to be idle for a moment, she obtained President Lincoln's permission to become official historian of missing men and spent much of four years searching for missing soldiers and marking the graves of fallen men. A lecture tour, planned to aid her finances and give publicity to her bureau of missing men, ended abruptly when her voice failed again and she sailed for Europe to regain her health.

The International Red Cross had been formed at Geneva, Switzerland, in 1864, after Henri Dunant had perceived the horrible suffering of the wounded after the Battle of Solferino. When Miss Barton came to Geneva in 1869, her Civil war fame had preceded her. The following year, the Franco-Prussian war inflamed Europe. Ignoring her illness, Clara repeated her Civil war services, won the undying gratitude of all Europe. Her ill had been cast off during the war's activities, but peace again found her in poor health. She had a mission to perform in America, however, and could scarcely wait to return. Arriving in the latter part of 1873, her classic fights—for her health and for the United States' adoption of the International Red Cross' Geneva treaty—were to occupy most of the nine years to follow.

In Dansville, New York, Clara Barton regained a degree of health. Then launching her attack in the second fight, she soon found President Hayes an insurmountable barrier. Undaunted, Clara stoically waited, continued her crusade with greater success when Garfield entered the White House.

Garfield's cruel assassination was but a temporary set-back; Clara Barton thrived on reverses! Secretary of State James G. Blaine and Secretary of War Robert T. Lincoln had been most sympathetic and when President Arthur succeeded Garfield, Clara kept up the barrage that finally won her heroic struggle. On March 1, 1882, the United States of America became a signatory to the Treaty of Geneva. It is said that Clara Barton's tears splashed on the spot where the United States seal was to be, when she was shown the treaty the day before it was signed by President Chester A. Arthur!

Many of Clara Barton's final 30 years were unpleasant indeed. Although she continued to serve her Red Cross and her Country with unselfish devotion—during the Mississippi and Ohio river floods in 1884; Johnstown flood in 1889; the tornado at Pomeroy, Iowa, in 1893; the Spanish-American war in 1898; the Galveston disaster in 1900—the great organization she had formed with her heart's blood and tears was slipping away from her. She was human, hence was not perfect. It is doubtless true that certain changes and modernizations in the Red Cross organization were necessary. But she had fought a lone fight to get her great movement started and she must have felt that she had some right to say how it should be managed.

In 1904, however, Clara Barton resigned the presidency of the Red Cross. She spent her remaining years in her new organization, the National First Aid association, and in many other activities. But she was now an old woman, and very, very tired. On April 12, 1912, her great heart just naturally stopped beating. "Let me go!"

Checkers, Packers Needed At Depot

There is an extremely urgent need at Letterkenny Ordnance Depot at the present time for fifty checkers, Arthur Warman, local secretary of the U. S. Civil Service commission, has announced.

Female salaries start at $1,533 per year and male at $1,732 per year for a 48-hour week. Eight years of schools are considered sufficient to qualify for the position of checker. There is also a need for 80 packers. Those not qualifying as packers will be placed as junior laborers at 57 cents an hour and will be raised to 64 cents an hour at the end of 30 days. Fully qualified packers will be paid 64 cents an hour. Further details are available from Mr. Warman at the post office.

10-POINT RATION STAMPS, TOKENS IN USE SUNDAY

Washington, Feb. 26 (AP)—Ten-point ration stamps and red and blue tokens as change will ease into use throughout the country starting tomorrow.

The new ration currency for buying meats, dairy products and processed foods becomes valid then, but the Office of Price Administration expects light exchange the first day, since most stores will be closed. But the new system will get a full-blown test Monday with resumption of heavier buying.

The stamps to be used under the new plan are all in Ration Book No. 4—blue for processed foods and red for meats and fats. Each stamp has a ten-point value regardless of the figure on the face.

The first red stamps valid for meat are A-8, B-8 and C-8. They may be used through May 20. Every two weeks, three new stamps will become valid.

Tokens for Change
Blue processed food stamps will be validated in sets of five at the start of each month, with the first series—A-8, B-8, C-8, D-8 and E-8—good through May 20.

As change for their ten-point stamps, housewives will get tokens—blue in processed food purchases and red for meats and dairy products—and these will be good indefinitely. In no case, however, may stamps be cashed outright for a full ten points in tokens. Thus nine tokens will be the most received as change for any stamp.

Along with the new stamps, brown stamps Y and Z for meats and green stamps K, L and M, for processed foods will be used until they expire, March 20. But unlike the new stamps, they will have figure 8, 5, 2 and 1—point values, as at present. While they remain in use, one-point green and brown stamps will be given as change, supplementing the token currency.

Then one night a movie was shown with Jack Oakie playing the part of a football star named Bolin-kowitz. Since then they call White "Boley."

MAROON CAGERS TRIP SQUIRES IN TWIN BILL

Taking the lead early in the game and slowly increasing their margin as the game progresses, the Gettysburg high school cagers brought their season to an end Friday evening by trouncing the Delone Catholic high dribblers with surprising ease here Friday evening 49-30.

A large crowd witnessed Coach Dry's team in its final performance and saw the Maroons annex their 13th win of the season. Five games were lost, one a 24-23 decision to Delone at McSherrystown.

Coach Dry gave all of the senior members of the squad a shot of action. Bobby March was the scoring star with five goals and nine foul conversions. George Fair, who with March will be lost from the starting lineup via graduation, was running up with 14 points.

After about a minute following the start of the game Gorman scored a "peep" and then "Hen" Noel tied the count with a one-handed toss. Fair looped a long throw which was followed by a foul by Lawrence. March sank a long try before Palmer looped the second of two free tosses. March contributed three straight fouls before W. Noel converted a charity throw. March was good for a one-handed goal. Keefe cut the Maroons' quarter-time margin to 11-7 with a short stab.

Maroons Boost Lead

Both teams played strong defensive games in the second period. Ogden and Fair landed free throws and March broke through for a short goal. H. Noel netted a foul and just before the half Fair made good on a long throw to give the Dry-men a 19-10 advantage at half time.

The Maroon attack began clicking in the third period and gradually the locals pulled into a commanding lead. Gorman and Fair were each good for a pair of goals during the round with March and Ogden landing single tosses. Palmer, Funk and H. Noel each tallied from the floor for the Drachmen. At the quarter Gettysburg led 32-17.

Coaches Dry and Drach used a flock of substitutes in the last period. Foul shooting was prominent in the last round as both teams battled furiously for the ball. During the round March connected on six of seven foul tries.

Sixth Straight
The Maroon reserves also got sweet revenge by defeating the husky Squares reserves in the preliminary game 17-13. The game was hotly contested throughout and the lead changed hands several times. At half time Delone led 7-6.

It marked the sixth win in a row for Rog Smith's lads and their 13th triumph in 17 starts.

Killinger To Pilot Chapel Hill Eleven

Chapel Hill, N. C., Feb. 26 (AP)—The football team at Navy's North Carolina Pre-Flight school here will be coached by Lt. W. Glenn Killinger, former star back and All-American at Penn State in 1921.

The announcement made yesterday said Lt. Killinger will take over the head coaching duties of Lt. Francis H. Kimbrough, who has been transferred to duties elsewhere.

Killinger was a football, baseball and basketball star at Penn State from 1917 to 1921. He was named on Walter Camp's all-American eleven in his senior year.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Feb. 26 (AP)—Latest anti-farm suggestion advanced by Detroit's Jack Zeller is to take part of the $300,000 "lying idle" in the National Association Treasury and set up baseball schools that would obtain and develop players for the lower class minors... clubs from Class A1 up to the majors would have to fend for themselves, and Zeller figures this would produce players for the independent minor clubs, who would then sell them to the major teams that doesn't own farms... one of Jack's complaints he reveals (via the Sporting News) is that the Dodgers came into Detroit territory last year and set up a baseball school at Pontiac, Mich. . . . and why not? The Tigers apparently weren't doing anything to dig up the material in their own back yard.

QUOTE, UNQUOTE

After absorbing a couple of blasts from Zeller in the course of explaining the plan, minor league boss W. G. Bramham wired this reply: "When anyone is a party to deliberately giving to the public misinformation when they have in their possession truthful facts to the contrary, it can only be charitably attributed to loquacious imbecility." . . . The Judge and Branch Rickey disagree on a lot of things, but it seems they talk the same language.

MONDAY MATINEE

The Boston garden is installing an expensive removable basketball court for a schoolboy tournament, which probably indicates that New England colleges will be going big-time on the hardwood before very long. . . . A man who would be one of first to know if the Yankees were to be sold says that no negotiations are under way at present and that none of the offers made by the three years still stands. . . . Ossie Harris, the Pittsburgh middleweight, once received a $1 check for winning a fight. He had agreed to take a percentage over a $4,000 net gate and the crowd was so small that the $1 was just a gesture. . . . Stanford's Johnny Fulton claims he judges his running pace by ear. "When I don't hear feet pounding behind me, I know I'm going too fast," he explains.

SERVICE DEPT.

Mack Flenniken, former Geneva college player and coach and pro football star, has been upped to Captain at Camp Kearns, Utah. He's business manager of the grid team there. . . . The Cherry Point, N. C., Marine air station, which did all right in winter sports, already is planning for the baseball season. Pfc. Kenney Reese of Alabama, Pfc. Walter Halsall of South Carolina U., and Sgt. Cecil Hubbard from the 1942 Montgomery rebels are the leading candidates for the team. . . . Ens. Murray Warmath, ex-Tennessee grid star and coach of boxing and wrestling, has checked in at the New Orleans Naval Armed Guard center, waiting for a ship.

Director J. E. Is Flamingo Favorite

Miami, Fla., Feb. 26 (AP)—J. Edgar Hoover of the FBI gave the name, and the public gave the role of odds-on favorite, to the big brown colt, Director J. E., in the glamorous Flamingo stakes at Hialeah Park today. . . . Mrs. E. K. Bryson's entry, which has won seven of the 14 starts of his career, may go to the post at little worse than even money unless a last-minute trend develops toward other contenders in the $15,000 top winter test for three-year-olds. The easy running Director breezed the same mile and an eighth last Saturday to defeat four of his 13 Flamingo rivals and the bettors see no reason why he shouldn't do it again.

His toughest opposition, however, is expected from two colts not in that preview—Mrs. A. J. Abel's Gramps Image and Greentree Stamps' Stir Up.

ARENDSVILLE, BIGLER SPLIT

Biglerville and Arendtsville high divided a pair of basketball games at Biglerville Friday evening, the boys' game going to the Apple Pickers 33-22 with the preliminary game being won by the unbeaten Cannors 34-18.

In ringing down the curtain on their season with a record of nine wins against seven losses, the Biglerville boys put up a determined battle against Arendtsville. Coach Snyder's lads led 12-11 at half time but succumbed to a drive started midway in the third period by the Apple Pickers.

Girls Undefeated
Coach Samuel Ehlman's Biglerville girls completed their campaign unbeaten by annexing their 13th straight win. Off to a 12-3 lead in the first period, the Cannors led throughout and were never seriously threatened.

Available records show this to be the first unbeaten season for the Biglerville girls who capped the championship of the West Shore Scholastic league during the current campaign.

Greenmount upset the Biglerville P.F.A. quintet 13-11 in the third game of the evening.

Bullets To Close Campaign Tonight

"Hen" Bream's Gettysburg college basketball team will wind up its 1944 schedule tonight by meeting the Lebanon Valley college dribblers on the college court at 8 o'clock. No preliminary game will be played.

Despite a victory scored at Anville some time ago the Bullets are looking for a stiff battle. On Wednesday the Dutchmen showed considerable improvement although losing a close decision to Albright.

JAKE LAMOTTA DRUBS HARRIS

By WATSON SPOELSTRA

Detroit, Feb. 26 (AP)—Jolting Jake La Motta of New York punched durable Ossie Harris of Pittsburgh all over the ring last night, and to the astonishment of the fighters themselves and 10,289 spectators La Motta got nothing better than a split decision.

In one of the zaniest scoring exhibitions on record here, Referee Sam Hennessy and Judge Elmer (Slim) McClelland each awarded La Motta eight rounds in a one-sided fight. However, Judge Michael (Dad) Butler cast his vote for Harris, giving him a 3 to 1 scoring edge and calling six rounds even.

For gaining his eighth victory in nine starts at Olympia stadium and third straight over Harris, La Motta picked up a $7,000 check from the $25,527 gross gate. His next start is March 17 at Boston against Coley Welch of Portland, Maine.

Harris dropped an unpopular split decision to La Motta here three weeks ago, but he wasn't in a photo finish on this one. La Motta caught him with a left hook in the first round that sent Harris reeling onto the middle strand of the ropes whence he slipped to the floor. The knockdown timekeeper made no move, but the referee said later he considered this and one other instance in the tenth round as knockdowns without count. La Motta weighed 161, Harris, 159.

Nashville, Tenn. (AP)—A prisoner serving a 60-day Federal sentence complained of his jail associates in a letter to the district judge. "All I hear is the boys talking of robbing banks and cracking safes and killing people," he wrote. "That sure gets on my nerves. If you will let me out of here, I'll never make no more whisky."

The judge commuted sentence, sent him home to his plowing.

BAKSI PUNCHES MAURIELLO INTO 10-RD. DEFEAT

By FRITZ HOWELL
New York, Feb. 26 (AP)—The heavyweight fistie ranks had a new title threat today—and a new title threat had a bride.

The threat is 22-year-old Joe Baksi of Kulpmont, Pa., former anthracite coal miner who last night in a rough and rugged scrap before 16,015 fans in Madison Square Garden punched out a 10-round decision over Tami Mauriello of the Bronx.

Mauriello entered the ring as the No. 2 ranking challenger for Joe Louis' crown and as a 5-12 favorite, but he left it a badly-beaten boy.

Baksi, making his first main event start in the Garden, flattened him for a nine-count with a left hook to the jaw in the first round, piled up an impressive lead in the early sessions, and then coasted to victory. The decision was unanimous, and the fans who paid $50,434 to see the scrap were satisfied.

Married a Week
After the fight Baksi announced he was married just a week ago to Miss Anne Tomchik of East Nassau, New York, a farm girl he met last summer. They were wed in Portchester, New York.

Baksi's bride was not at the ring-side for last night's brawl, and she didn't hear it on the radio or read about it in the papers. She attended a movie, and then listened later while Joe explained what happened.

Baksi outweighed Mauriello 210½ to 196½ pounds, and had things his own way most of the time. His jarring left hook and a long right, which he threw with abandon, found their marks time after time and Tami was never dangerous.

Mauriello said he injured his hand in the third round, but that was after he had been floored for the nine-count, and long before he staged a whirlwind finish to take the last two rounds by a comfortable margin.

Title Scrap Looms
Until he ran into Baksi's rugged wallop, Mauriello had lost only two heavyweight fights, both to Cleveland's Jimmy Bivins. Baksi, who started fighting in 1940, has lost only two scraps, via the decision route to Teddy Wint and Gus Dorazio, in 44 attempts.

Asked if he'd like to meet Joe Louis for the big crown, Baksi said: "You'll have to ask my manager about that. I'm lucky to be where I am. I feel that Mauriello was a stepping stone, and I'll get in there with Louis anytime my manager says I'm ready."

She just looked at her huge husband; her eyes shining, and said: "I think my Joe can beat that Joe Louis."

Opening round 74's were posted by Joe Kirkwood, Philadelphia; Harry Cooper, Minneapolis; Joe Ezar, Waco, Tex.; Dave Clark, Galveston, Tex., and Bob Hamilton of Evansville, Ind.

The current test is a 72-hole medal play affair.

Hazleton To Play Canaries For Title

Hazleton, Pa., Feb. 26 (AP)—Hazleton and Allentown high schools each won a basketball game last night and as a result court fans in the two cities are going to see a lot of extra basketball in the next two weeks.

Hazleton defeated Easton 54 to 33 last night and Allentown defeated Pottsville 36 to 30 and as a result both winners are now tied for the first and second half championships of the Eastern Scholastic Basketball league.

The first half championship play-off will begin next Tuesday night at the Northwest junior high school in Reading, Pa. Following the crowning of a first half champion the two teams will meet again to decide second half honors, and if each should win a game a third playoff will be necessary to decide the Eastern league championship.

The Eastern league drew a bye in the first round of the district play-offs and will settle its own championship before entering tournament play.

Today's Talk

A LITTLE NONSENSE NOW AND THEN

Looking over some books in a store recently, I spied a beautiful limited edition of "Alice in Wonderland," bought it and took it home, where I devoted an entire evening to its reading. It may not be generally known that the author, Charles Dodgson, was a professor of mathematics, and wrote several books on this subject.

It is understandable, therefore, why it was that this author wanted to write something entirely different—something that was utterly nonsense—yet fun! Strange as it may seem, these "Alice" books have attained world-wide fame and have brought pleasure and happiness to millions, whereas who has ever read his other books? Nonsense, I say, but are such books nonsense? I think not, in the final analysis. They are escape books, to which we turn for relaxation and humorous pleasure.

The first edition of "Alice in Wonderland" is so rare that only the wealthy can afford a copy—that is, the real first of 1865. Dr. Rosenbach paid something like $76,000 for the manuscript, and then sold it to a New Jersey millionaire for something like double this amount. A big sum to pay for nonsense! So let us call it, rather, a book of fun, into which the author put his love of the fanciful and a play of mind.

It was this same "Alice in Wonderland" that the Captain in a New York play read to his former pupil before going "over the top"—from which he did not return. Any soldier can understand.

Eugene Field, America's great poet of childhood, was late to his wedding because he stopped to play marbles with a group of boys along the way. And it was Kenneth Grahame who wrote that enduring masterpiece "The Wind in the Willows," fanciful stories of animals, humanized, to entertain the little son that he so much loved. Kenneth Grahame was an official of the Bank of England. He was the author of but five books with the exception of but two—"The Headwaters" and "Pagan Papers"—all about childhood.

Stephen Leacock, the noted Canadian professor of mathematics, is the author of a whole string of books, delightfully nonsensical in their humor. But how relished by us all!

Youth Is Sentenced For Killing Woman

Elmira, N. Y., Feb. 26 (AP)—George Albert Bailey, 28, South Williamsport, Pa., today began a 20-year to life prison sentence in Attica prison after pleading guilty to a charge of second degree murder in the death of Mrs. Ruth Butler, 23, also of South Williamsport, on January 24.

Bailey was charged with fatally stabbing Mrs. Butler with a jack-knife during an argument over another man. Bailey surrendered to Elmira police the same day. He was sentenced by County Judge Bertram L. Newman.

Riding with Russell

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off. by FREDERICK C. RUSSELL, Member S. A. E.

Accident statistics still show that we've got to slow down and hurry up about it.

To those who are inclined to worry perhaps it would be well to say a word about what happens when and where the ring gaps line up on a piston, wonder what they would have to do in event of a gap lineup. The truth is that where rings slide around so that gaps accidentally line up the situation automatically corrects itself since the rings easily move on to new positions or back to where they were.

This was made very clear in a technical paper describing tests of blowby on a one-cylinder engine. Every now and again blowby increased excessively because of a ring gap lineup, but this was always temporary.

Test For Gear Mesh

If there is any question regarding the mesh of rear-end gears with the pinion, drain all lube from the rear end after removing the housing cover and then paint the gear teeth with red lead smoothed out with a little light machine oil. With the rear end jacked up, mesh the gears in high and let the engine run at a speed equivalent to a car speed of about 30 mph. Then apply a load by pressing the brake pedal until the engine is pulling about as it would when powering the car around 30 mph. Next put the gears in reverse and apply the brakes as before. Now look at the gears. Markings on the gear teeth all the way across their faces and half way down will represent just about the right mesh.

In these days of high frequency of car trouble we have to be careful to avoid getting lost in symptoms. They are not trouble itself, and should be considered merely as "thermometers" that aid us in getting at the root of things. Right now many motorists seem to consider the familiar motor "ping" as a trouble in itself. Actually it is merely a handy thermometer. It indicates that the engine either suffers from an overdose of carbon or that it is inclined to overheat. That we probably wouldn't have the ping under normal conditions and with normally high octane gasoline in the tank doesn't alter the essential fact that there is too much carbon in the cylinders or too high operating temperature, or both. Use the "ping" as a warning to get after the basic conditions which play the leading part in producing it. Bear in mind that the high octane gas we got before the war covered up a multitude of motor conditions that should have been corrected.

Mechanic Joe Speaking: "I have weathered a lot of adverse criticism because of my policy of tuning an engine as a preliminary to finding out why it manufactures certain bothersome noises, but the idea has worked well and I mean to stick to it. Through this policy I have been able to avoid many a needless service job. "If you put the engine in tune you favor it with a set of conditions under which it can behave normally. Then, if the noise persists, you know there is something mechanically wrong. If you were not sure about timing, for instance, or the gas mixture, your noise might be due to preignition or to fuel conditions. Get these possibilities out of the way at the start and your route to the real source of the trouble will be that much easier. Often I have found that the noise clears up in the very process of putting the engine into proper tune."

There are two ways to decrease engine compression, but I wouldn't advise either one of them to check motor pinging from lower octane gas. Using two cylinder head gaskets would help check the ping but would rob the engine of power and lower its gas mileage. Using a special set of pistons would also change compression, but here again we lose

Best policy is to curb your performance. Keep the ignition, timing well advanced for best gas mileage under present conditions, but spare that acceleration!

When Wipers Go Wrong

I'm not trying to drum up business for the already overworked service man but if the windshield wiper goes wrong, and a few simple checks show that the remedy is beyond your ability, by all means take the car to a man who understands the particular nature of wipers. Those checks which you can make include noting if the nut at the end of the wiper shaft is holding its blade tightly, checking for a leak in the suction line to the intake manifold, and making sure that the vacuum pump side of the fuel pump is up to par. A leak in the diaphragm of this vacuum pump will not only slow down the wiper but will cause marked increase in oil consumption. Not all fuel pumps have this feature, and of course some of the wipers are electric in operation.

Because refiners have told us that wartime gasoline will require a longer period for the engine to warm up anything in the nature of a backfiring is likely to be taken as one of those things you can't do anything about. The fact is, however, that such backfiring often means that there is a weak valve spring. Another guide is a tendency for the engine to clatter even if the tappets are given very careful clearances. It is easy enough to test for a bad spring by inserting a screw-driver between its coils while the engine is operating. This temporarily increases spring tension.

While valve springs can be increased in tension by expanding them the best remedy is to replace them if new springs are available. Efficient valve action is one of the most direct routes to more miles per gallon.

Worse With Downdraft

A sticky choke valve is more wasteful today than in the earlier days when carburetors were of the updraft type. Since less choking is required with a modern downdraft carburetor—since this type of carburetor takes advantage of gravity to feed fuel vapor more quickly to the cylinders—anything in the way of over-choking is certain to be especially wasteful. In every case of low gas mileage attention should be paid to the choke since there is always the chance that it may be sluggish in its action. A tipoff is tendency for the overchoked engine to skip, or lope. This is done without backfiring through the carburetor.

Service manuals often state that it is not necessary to keep the oil level to the full mark but merely to make sure that the oil level is at least above the "add oil" on the dip stick. The point in this is entirely clear, yet I disagree with this sort of advice. In summer a maximum reading of oil insures cooler oil and better engine operation, while in winter a full supply of oil means less crankcase dilution. Put it this way: the percentage of dilution will be higher for five quarts of oil than for six. In these days we can't afford to encourage anything in the line of laxity.

ing trouble, but whenever I take the family out at night or on Sunday the front wheels shimmy badly. I am careful to keep tire pressures up. Can you explain? H. B. L.

A. The added passenger weight increases front end caster by sagging the rear. When you have the front end checked over take caster measurements with the car normally loaded.

Q. A lot of black smoke comes from the exhaust of my car at times. How can I cut down oil consumption? D. C. McD.

A. This is no evidence of an oil pump. Black smoke indicates an excessively rich carburetor mixture. Better check the choke valve as it probably is given to sticking in a partly closed position. Bluish smoke from the exhaust is the tip-off to high oil consumption.

Q. Although I have tried all the usual remedies I have been unable to start the engine of my car. It new battery has been installed. Gas is reaching the cylinders, but no spark reaches the plugs. Coil and points are all right, and there is no evidence of poor connections or broken wiring. I hope you can help me. G. N. B.

A. I am suspicious of the rotor in the distributor. Try a new one. The old one may be cracked and this would cause it to short.

Q. How can I tell where the break occurs when the engine runs but the car won't go ahead when in gear with the clutch engaged? Wm. K. T.

A. Chances are that the clutch is slipping, but if it isn't you won't be able to shift gears without decelerating. From there on back best way to test is to have the car on a filling station lift, engine running, car in gear.

PLAN TO STOP
COAL SHORTAGE

Washington, Feb. 26 (AP)—Interior Secretary Ickes today announced an extensive system for fighting domestic coal shortages next winter.

This spring the solid fuels administrator (SFA), which Ickes heads, will set up regional and local organizations, composed of men serving without pay, coal dealers for the most part. They will help the SFA build up stocks of coal and coke in spring and summer, and when cold weather returns will "mobilize" distribution facilities when necessary in order to insure that distressing shortages won't be caused by maldistribution.

The committees will:
1. Arrange with the SFA for emergency shipments to avoid threatening shortages;
2. Ascertain which dealers or consumers are actually in need of preferential deliveries to avoid distress;
3. Maintain headquarters through which consumers who cannot obtain solid fuels from normal suppliers may get emergency relief until permanent arrangements can be made.

The committees will not be established in New Hampshire, Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island, which already have state-sponsored cooperative programs, approved by Secretary Ickes.

COLD FACTS

Philadelphia (AP)—Says George Miller, chairman of District Ration Board No. 6:

"I've been shivering in my apartment—at 40 degrees temperature—all winter."

Miller might ration out some oil to his landlord—but the furnace burns coal, scarce and unrationed.

A CAR IS NOT LIKE A CAT!

A cat is supposed to have nine lives. A car obviously has only one. And it is unfortunate but true that many of us, in this country, don't even get all the good out of that one lifetime, for the simple reason that there have always been plenty of new cars available when an old one wore out. Now things are different. It's up to all of us to make that one lifetime stretch. In a word, that means Care! Regular care—expert care—more thorough care than we ordinarily give our cars. That's where we come in. In peacetime you may look on us as "just a service station" if you like. Now, though, we're running an "Automobile Life Extension Service"—and nothing less. Mrs. Atwill To Wed For Fourth Time

Washington, Feb. 26 (AP)—Mrs. Lionel Atwill, divorced wife of the actor and formerly the wife of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, will be married March 11 to Capt. Alf Heigers, 39, Army Air forces band leader, she disclosed today.

Mrs. Atwill, who met the band leader at a serviceman's party here about a year ago, said the wedding would take place at the Washington home of her mother, socially prominent Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury.

It will be her fourth trip to the altar.

Her father was the late Oliver Cromwell of Philadelphia, but her mother later married Edward T. Stotesbury, Philadelphia financier.

Mrs. Atwill is the sister of James Cromwell, whose Reno divorce by Doris Duke is being contested by him in New Jersey.

SERVICES OF RED

Albert Bachman, who are soon on their way to see if conditions are such as to warrant the soldier's discharge.

Also in the mail is a letter from the Red Cross field director at the Veterans' Administration, Philadelphia, notifying the county Red Cross of the present status of a claim for pension of a discharged, disabled Adams county war veteran. More medical details are needed on the man's condition prior to his enlistment. Miss McMillan checks on the doctor's records in the case, sends the information on its way to Philadelphia.

Calls From Homes

Before the work of checking the veteran's condition is finished the phone rings and one of the representatives of the Red Cross in the county is on the wire. He reports that a county family is in need of emergency financial assistance pending investigation by the County Public Assistance Board. The family needs fuel badly, he reports, the husband's arm is broken . . . he cannot work. The county Red Cross representative is authorized to buy coal for the family. After he has hung up, the county Red Cross office calls the Department of Public Assistance office reporting the need of the county family. The Assistance board reports it will send a visitor, will give aid if needed.

A soldier's mother comes in to report that she had a letter from her son asking her to send him some money for extra expenses he has had. She asks the Red Cross to verify the need. A wire to the field representative at the camp where the boy is located brings the answer the next morning that the need is real and the Red Cross here authorizes the field director to give the soldier the money which the mother has turned over.

Vets Receive Help

A soldier's wife calls saying that the soldier's mother has died and asks if it would be possible to get the message through to the county soldier in the South Pacific. The local Red Cross sends the message to National Red Cross headquarters in Washington where a message is sent to a field director in the south Pacific to inform the soldier of his mother's death.

Next on the list is a telegram stating that the wife of a soldier in a western station wants to come back to Adams county as the husband is going overseas. "Would his mother accept his wife at her home and send the money needed for transportation?" the soldier's telegram asks. The county office calls a local representative in the county who visits the mother's home. "She would be glad to have her daughter-in-law," the representative reports. He also reports $20 was given him for the transportation. The money was wired to the soldier to send his wife home.

Two First World War ex-servicemen drop into the office. One is given a meal ticket, the other a pair of trousers, which seemed to meet all of their needs at the moment.

Young Mother Aided

A telegraph messenger comes in with a wire from the field director in regard to the soldier seeking a furlough the night before—the furlough has been granted.

In the mail is a reply to an inquiry sent to a field director overseas asking for a more detailed report on a county soldier whose mother learned he was in the hospital but did not know any further details. The report stated the youth had a broken ankle, was soon to be discharged from the hospital. A letter was sent to the mother here in the county telling her the findings of the field director.

A young soldier's wife enters the office. She needs assistance in filling out the form for an increased allotment due her as the mother of a newly-born child.

That work finished, it is time for lunch.

Give Help, Advice

Several visitors are waiting when the office opens in the afternoon. The first is a young woman asking the Red Cross to secure a furlough for her brother because of the serious illness of their mother. The doctor adds that the presence of the son is urgently needed. A wire to the field director brings a report the next day that the boy is on his way home, having been granted an emergency furlough.

Three discharged service men follow. All want assistance in filling out applications for mustering out payments.

Another soldier's mother comes in. She asks for information regarding the allotment her son made her. She has not been paid for several months. The county office advises patience, asks if it can be of assistance in the meantime, points out that changes in the Class B dependency laws have caused many changes in the set-up and as a result, some delay in some instances.

So the work goes day after day—with the Red Cross the recipient of many of the troubles and heart-breaks of the county. With each day the work becomes a little greater as more and more county men and women are called into the armed services—more and more are sent overseas.

In between times the staff of the Red Cross must keep its records straight, fill out forms, study a thousand details in meeting all requirements of forms and information in order to be of utmost assistance to the people of the county.

Reapportionment To Affect Primary

Harrisburg, Feb. 26 (AP)—The 1943 congressional reapportionment law affects the primaries as well as the general election this year, Attorney General James H. Duff ruled in answer to a request from Charles M. Morrison, secretary of the commonwealth.

Morrison, in asking the opinion, noted the law reads "the first election under this act shall be held at the general election in the year 1944," and Duff ruled "it must necessarily include also the preceding primary held in conjunction with such general election."

The 1943 legislature, despite Democratic minority objections, eliminated the election of one congressman by the entire state and divided the state into 33 districts instead of the 32 set up by the 1942 reapportionment act.

Duff, in another ruling requested by Banking Secretary William C. Freeman, held that warehousemen who loan money upon goods, wares or merchandise pledged, stored or deposited as collateral must be licensed under the commonwealth's pawnbrokers' license act.

The commission said the action terminated its seven-year old rate case against the company, which reached the state Superior court and was returned to the commission for further action.

Missing! Brave and steadfast stay.
Come again to you he may.

Today's Talk
A LITTLE NONSENSE NOW AND THEN

Looking over some books in a store recently, I spied a beautiful limited edition of "Alice in Wonderland," bought it and took it home, where I devoted an entire evening to its reading. It may not be generally known that the author, Charles Dodgson, was a professor of mathematics, and wrote several books on this subject.

It is understandable, therefore, why it was that this author wanted to write something entirely different—something that was utterly nonsense—yet fun! Strange as it may seem, these "Alice" books have attained world-wide fame and have brought pleasure and happiness to millions, whereas who has ever read his other books? Nonsense, I say, but are such books nonsense? I think not, in the final analysis. They are escape books, to which we turn for relaxation and humorous pleasure.

The first edition of "Alice in Wonderland" is so rare that only the wealthy can afford a copy—that is, the real first of 1865. Dr. Rosenbach paid something like $76,000 for the manuscript, and then sold it to a New Jersey millionaire for something like double this amount. A big sum to pay for nonsense! So let us call it, rather, a book of fun, into which the author put his love of the fanciful and a play of mind.

It was this same "Alice in Wonderland" that the Captain in a New York play read to his former pupil before going "over the top"—from which he did not return. Any soldier can understand.

Eugene Field, America's great poet of childhood, was late to his wedding because he stopped to play marbles with a group of boys along the way. And it was Kenneth Grahame who wrote that enduring masterpiece "The Wind in the Willows," fanciful stories of animals, humanized, to entertain the little son that he so much loved. Kenneth Grahame was an official of the Bank of England but was the author of but two—"The Headwaters" and "Pagan Papers"—all about childhood.

Stephen Leacock, the noted Canadian professor of mathematics, is the author of a whole string of books, delightfully nonsensical in their humor. But how relished by us all!

Riding with Russell

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off. by FREDERICK C. RUSSELL, Member S. A. E.

Accident statistics still show that we've got to slow down and hurry up about it.

To those who are inclined to worry perhaps it would be well to say a word about what happens when and some owners worry about this and if the ring gaps line up on a piston, wonder what they would have to do in event of a gap lineup. The truth is that where rings slide around so that gaps accidentally line up the situation automatically corrects itself since the rings easily move on to new positions or back to where they were.

This was made very clear in a technical paper describing tests of blowby on a one-cylinder engine. Every now and again blowby increased excessively because of a ring gap lineup, but this was always temporary.

Test For Gear Mesh

If there is any question regarding the mesh of rear-end gears with the pinion, drain all lube from the rear end after removing the housing cover and then paint the gear teeth with red lead smoothed out with a little light machine oil. With the rear end jacked up, mesh the gears in high and let the engine run at a speed equivalent to a car speed of about 30 mph. Then apply a load by pressing the brake pedal until the engine is pulling about as it would when powering the car around 30 mph. Next put the gears in reverse and apply the brakes as before. Now look at the gears. Markings on the gear teeth all the way across their faces and half way down will represent just about the right mesh.

In these days of high frequency of car trouble we have to be careful to avoid getting lost in symptoms. They are not trouble itself, and should be considered merely as "thermometers" that aid us in getting at the root of things. Right now many motorists seem to consider the familiar motor "ping" as a trouble in itself. Actually it is merely a handy thermometer. It indicates that the engine either suffers from an overdose of carbon or that it is inclined to overheat. That we probably wouldn't have the ping under normal conditions and with normally high octane gasoline in the tank doesn't alter the essential fact that there is too much carbon in the cylinders or too high operating temperature, or both. Use the "ping" as a warning to get after the basic conditions which play the leading part in producing it. Bear in mind that the high octane gas we got before the war covered up a multitude of motor conditions that should have been corrected.

Worse With Downdraft
A sticky choke valve is more wasteful today than in the earlier days when carburetors were of the updraft type. Since less choking is required with a modern downdraft carburetor—since this type of carburetor takes advantage of gravity to feed fuel vapor more quickly to the cylinders—anything in the way of over-choking is certain to be especially wasteful. In every case of low gas mileage attention should be paid to the choke since there is always the chance that it may be sluggish in its action. A tipoff is tendency of the overchecked engine to skip, or lope. This is done without backfiring through the carburetor.

Service manuals often state that it is not necessary to keep the oil level to the full mark but merely to make sure that the oil level is at least above the "add oil" on the dip stick. The point in this is entirely clear, yet I disagree with this sort of advice. In summer a maximum reading of oil insures cooler oil and better engine operation, while in winter a full supply of oil means less crankcase dilution. Put it this way: the percentage of dilution will be higher for five quarts of oil than for six. In these days we can't afford to encourage anything in the line of laxity.

Mechanic Joe Speaking:
"I have weathered a lot of adverse criticism because of my policy of tuning an engine as a preliminary to finding out why it manufactures certain bothersome noises, but the idea has worked well and I mean to stick to it. Through this policy I have been able to avoid many a needless service job."

"If you put the engine in tune you favor it with a set of conditions under which it can behave normally. Then, if the noise persists, you know there is something mechanically wrong. If you were not sure about timing, for instance, or the gas mixture, your noise might be due to preignition or to fuel conditions. Get these possibilities out of the way at the start and your route to the real source of the trouble will be that much easier. Often I have found that the noise clears up in the very process of putting the engine into proper tune."

There are two ways to decrease engine compression, but I wouldn't advise either one of them to check motor pinging from lower octane gas. Using two cylinder head gaskets would help check the ping but would rob the engine of power and lower its gas mileage. Using a special set of pistons would also change compression, but here again we lose.

Best policy is to curb your performance. Keep the ignition timing well advanced for best gas mileage under present conditions, but spare that acceleration!

When Wipers Go Wrong

I'm not trying to drum up business for the already overworked service man but if the windshield wiper goes wrong, and a few simple checks show that the remedy is beyond your ability, by all means take the car to a man who understands the particular nature of wipers. Those checks which you can make include noting if the nut at the end of the wiper shaft is holding its blade tightly, checking for a leak in the suction line to the intake manifold, and making sure that the vacuum pump side of the fuel pump is up to par. A leak in the diaphragm of this vacuum pump will not only slow down the wiper but will cause marked increase in oil consumption. Not all fuel pumps have this feature, and of course some of the wipers are electric in operation. Because refiners have told us that wartime gasoline will require a longer period for the engine to warm up anything in the nature of a back-firing is likely to be taken as one of those things you can't do anything about. The fact is, however, that such backfiring often means that there is a weak valve spring. Another guide is a tendency for the engine to chatter even if the tappets are given very careful clearances. It is easy enough to test for a bad spring by inserting a screw-driver between its coils while the engine is operating. This temporarily increases spring tension.

While valve springs can be increased in tension by expanding them the best remedy is to replace them if new springs are available. Efficient valve action is one of the most direct routes to more miles per gallon.

Worse With Downdraft
A sticky choke valve is more wasteful today than in the earlier days when carburetors were of the updraft type. Since less choking is required with a modern downdraft carburetor—since this type of carburetor takes advantage of gravity to feed fuel vapor more quickly to the cylinders—anything in the way of over-choking is certain to be especially wasteful. In every case of low gas mileage attention should be paid to the choke since there is always the chance that it may be sluggish in its action. A tipoff is tendency of the overchecked engine to skip, or lope. This is done without backfiring through the carburetor.

Service manuals often state that it is not necessary to keep the oil level to the full mark but merely to make sure that the oil level is at least above the "add oil" on the dip stick. The point in this is entirely clear, yet I disagree with this sort of advice. In summer a maximum reading of oil insures cooler oil and better engine operation, while in winter a full supply of oil means less crankcase dilution. Put it this way: the percentage of dilution will be higher for five quarts of oil than for six. In these days we can't afford to encourage anything in the line of laxity.

ing trouble, but whenever I take the family out at night or on Sunday the front wheels shimmy badly. I am careful to keep tire pressures up. Can you explain? H. B. L.

A. The added passenger weight increases front end caster by sagging the rear. When you have the front end checked over take caster measurements with the car normally loaded.

Q A lot of black smoke comes from the exhaust of my car at times. How can I cut down oil consumption? D. C. McD.

A. This is no evidence of an oil pump. Black smoke indicates an excessively rich carburetor mixture. Better check the choke valve as it probably is given to sticking in a partly closed position. Blush smoke from the exhaust is the tip-off to high oil consumption.

Q Although I have tried all the usual remedies I have been unable to start the engine of my car. It new battery has been installed. Gas is reaching the cylinders, but no spark reaches the plugs. Coil and points are all right, and there is no evidence of poor connections or broken wiring. I hope you can help me. G. N. B.

A. I am suspicious of the rotor in the distributor. Try a new one. The old one may be cracked and this would cause it to short.

Q How can I tell where the break occurs when the engine runs but the car won't go ahead when in gear with the clutch engaged? Wm. K. T.

A. Chances are that the clutch is slipping, but if it isn't you won't be able to shift gears without decelerating. From there on back best way to test is to have the car on a filling station lift, engine running, car in gear.

PLAN TO STOP COAL SHORTAGE

Washington, Feb. 26 (AP)—Interior Secretary Ickes today announced an extensive system for fighting domestic coal shortages next winter.

This spring the solid fuels administrator (SFA), which Ickes heads, will set up regional and local organizations, composed of men serving without pay, coal dealers for the most part. They will help the SFA build up stocks of coal and coke in spring and summer, and when cold weather returns will "mobilize" distribution facilities when necessary in order to insure that distressing shortages won't be caused by maldistribution.

The committees will:

1. Arrange with the SFA for emergency shipments to avoid threatening shortages;
2. Ascertain which dealers or consumers are actually in need of preferential deliveries to avoid distress; and
3. Maintain headquarters through which consumers who cannot obtain solid fuels from normal suppliers may get emergency relief until permanent arrangements can be made.

The committees will not be established in New Hampshire, Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island, which already have state-sponsored cooperative programs, approved by Secretary Ickes.

COLD FACTS

Philadelphia (AP)—Says George Miller, chairman of District Ration Board No. 6:

"I've been shivering in my apartment—at 40 degrees temperature—all winter."

Miller might ration out some oil to his landlord—but the furnace burns coal, scarce and unrationed.

A CAR IS NOT LIKE A CAT!

A cat is supposed to have nine lives. A car obviously has only one. And it is unfortunate but true that many of us, in this country, don't even get all the good out of that one lifetime, for the simple reason that there have always been plenty of new cars available when an old one wore out. Now things are different. It's up to all of us to make that one lifetime stretch. In a word, that means Care! Regular care—expert care—more thorough care than we ordinarily give our cars. That's where we come in. In peacetime you may look on us as "just a service station" if you like. Now, though, we're running an "Automobile Life Extension Service"—and nothing less. Want to come in and talk it over?

READ THE RECORD OF ACTUAL PERFORMANCE

WE CAN OFFER eligible car owners the only synthetic tires backed by the experience gained from this car owner's test—B. F. Goodrich Silvertown. In 1940, thousands of Silvertowns (in which more than half the rubber was synthetic) were sold to hundreds of car owners. They were put to work right alongside natural rubber tires. More than 80,000,000 miles have gone by... and these Silvertowns more than equaled the performance of the natural rubber tires. So—depend on the records of actual performance and get—all synthetic B. F. Goodrich Silvertowns. Come in and see this tire today.

LIMITED STOCKS

Only B & C Book Holders Who Qualify For Tires For Essential Driving Can Get These Ameripol Silvertowns.

There still is a critical rubber shortage. Most synthetic rubber is needed for vital war requirements. Every American must continue to conserve rubber! Follow the five basic rules of tire conservation from the Office of the Rubber Director:

1. Drive only when absolutely necessary.
2. Keep under 35 miles an hour.
3. Keep your tires properly inflated.
4. Have them inspected regularly.

Mrs. Atwill To Wed For Fourth Time

Washington, Feb. 26 (AP)—Mrs. Lionel Atwill, divorced wife of the actor and formerly the wife of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, will be married March 11 to Capt. Alf Heikerg, 39, Army Air force band leader, she disclosed today.

Mrs. Atwill, who met the band leader at a serviceman's party here about a year ago, said the wedding would take place at the Washington home of her mother, socially prominent Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury.

It will be her fourth trip to the altar.

Her father was the late Oliver Cromwell of Philadelphia, but her mother later married Edward T. Stotesbury, Philadelphia financier. Mrs. Atwill is the sister of James Cromwell, whose Reno divorce by Doris Duke is being contested by him in New Jersey.

SERVICES OF RED

Albert Bachman, who are soon on their way to see if conditions are such as to warrant the soldier's discharge.

Also in the mail is a letter from the Red Cross field director at the Veterans' Administration, Philadelphia, notifying the county Red Cross of the present status of a claim for pension of a discharged, disabled Adams county war veteran. More medical details are needed on the man's condition prior to his enlistment. Miss McMillan checks on the doctor's records in the case, sends the information on its way to Philadelphia.

Calls From Homes

Before the work of checking the veteran's condition is finished the phone rings and one of the representatives of the Red Cross in the county is on the wire. He reports that a county family is in need of emergency financial assistance pending investigation by the County Public Assistance Board. The family needs fuel badly, he reports, the husband's arm is broken . . . he cannot work. The county Red Cross representative is authorized to buy coal for the family. After he has hung up, the county Red Cross office calls the Department of Public Assistance office reporting the need of the county family. The Assistance board reports it will send a visitor, will give aid if needed.

A soldier's mother comes in to report that she had a letter from her son asking her to send him some money for extra expenses he has had. She asks the Red Cross to verify the need. A wire to the field representative at the camp where the boy is located brings the answer the next morning that the need is real and the Red Cross here authorizes the field director to give the soldier the money which the mother has turned over.

Vets Receive Help

A soldier's wife calls saying that the soldier's mother has died and asks if it would be possible to get the message through to the county soldier in the South Pacific. The local Red Cross sends the message to National Red Cross headquarters in Washington where a message is sent to a field director in the south Pacific to inform the soldier of his mother's death.

Next on the list is a telegram stating that the wife of a soldier in a western station wants to come back to Adams county as the husband is going overseas. "Would his mother accept his wife at her home and send the money needed for transportation?" the soldier's telegram asks. The county office calls a local representative in the county who visits the mother's home. "She would be glad to have her daughter-in-law," the representative reports. He also reports $20 was given him for the transportation. The money was wired to the soldier to send his wife home.

Two First World War ex-servicemen drop into the office. One is given a meal ticket, the other a pair of trousers, which seemed to meet all of their needs at the moment.

Young Mother Aided

A telegraph messenger comes in with a wire from the field director in regard to the soldier seeking a furlough the night before—"the furlough has been granted."

In the mail is a reply to an inquiry sent to a field director overseas asking for a more detailed report on a county soldier whose mother learned he was in the hospital but did not know any further details. The report stated the youth had a broken ankle, was soon to be discharged from the hospital. A letter was sent to the mother here in the county telling her the findings of the field director.

A young soldier's wife enters the office. She needs assistance in filling out the form for an increased allotment due her as the mother of a newly-born child.

Give Help, Advice

Several visitors are waiting when the office opens in the afternoon. The first is a young woman asking the Red Cross to secure a furlough for her brother because of the serious illness of their mother. A call to the doctor verifies the statement. The doctor adds that the presence of the son is urgently needed. A wire to the field director brings a report the next day that the boy is on his way home, having been granted an emergency furlough.

Three discharged service men follow. All want assistance in filling out applications for mustering out payments.

Another soldier's mother comes in. She asks for information regarding the allotment her son made her. She has not been paid for several months. The county office advises patience, asks if it can be of assistance in the meantime, points out that changes in the Class B dependency laws have caused many changes in the set-up and as a result, some delay in some instances.

So the work goes day after day—with the Red Cross the recipient of many of the troubles and heart-breaks of the county. With each day the work becomes a little greater as more and more county men and women are called into the armed services—more and more are sent overseas.

In between times the staff of the Red Cross must keep its records straight, fill out forms, study a thousand details in meeting all requirements of forms and information in order to be of utmost assistance to the people of the county.

Reapportionment To Affect Primary

Harrisburg, Feb. 26 (AP)—The 1943 congressional reapportionment law affects the primaries as well as the general election this year, Attorney General James H. Duff ruled in answer to a request from Charles M. Morrison, secretary of the commonwealth.

Morrison, in asking the opinion, noted the law reads "the first election under this act shall be held at the general election in the year 1944," and Duff ruled "it must necessarily include also the preceding primary held in conjunction with such general election."

The 1943 legislature, despite Democratic minority objections, eliminated the election of one congressman by the entire state and divided the state into 33 districts instead of the 32 set up by the 1942 reapportionment act.

Duff, in another ruling requested by Banking Secretary William C. Freeman, held that warehousemen who loan money upon goods, wares or merchandise pledged, stored or deposited as collateral must be licensed under the commonwealth's pawnbrokers' license act.

The commission said the action terminated its seven-year old rate case against the company, which reached the state Superior court and was returned to the commission for further action.

Solon Suggests A New "Firing" Salute

Washington, Feb. 26 (AP)—A new kind of salute to be fired in honor of the next American Military victory has been suggested by Representative Scott (R-Pa.).

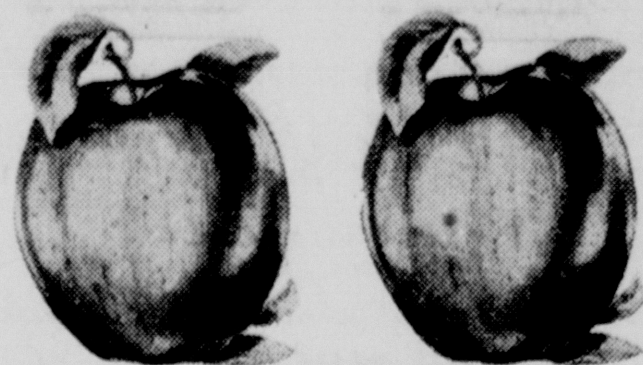

The Philadelphian told the house "the brave Russian armies symbolize their victories by firing a couple of hundred guns in Moscow."

"Would it not be a good idea to celebrate the next United States victory by firing a couple of hundred bureaucrats in Washington?" He added, "this would save not only money but ammunition."

RADIO PROGRAMS

New York, Feb. 26 (AP) — Jack Benny can change sponsors in the midst of a career and hold his same time on the network, as he has announced from Hollywood he is doing for next season, because he has a contract rare in radio.

Jack, rather than the sponsor, "owns" the half-hour he uses on NBC Sundays at 7 p. m. under an option arrangement. Thus, when he takes on a new sponsor he doesn't have to move around to some other spot that might reflect itself in a change in his listening audience.

Jack hasn't exactly said so, but it is understood that by the shift he will increase the price for his program complete from $22,500 to $25,000. Jack will continue with the present sponsor, for whom he has been broadcasting ten years, until a 17-week vacation from June, and return in the fall under the new banner.

Sulfa Smuggling Ring Uncovered

Philadelphia, Feb. 26 (AP)—Customs agents have uncovered a ring engaged in smuggling sulfadiazine tablets into Portugal, where they are sold at many times their original price, Assistant U. S. Attorney Edward A. Kallick said.

Alilio Esteves, a seaman from the Portuguese ship Serpa Pinto, now in port here, was arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Norman J. Griffin yesterday, and Andrew J. Morris, a Philadelphia lonshoreman, was arraigned last week, both on charges of conspiracy to violate customs regulations, Kallick said. The tablets, which wholesale at $1.49 a hundred, were sold to seamen at $5 to $6 a hundred, Kallick said. In Portugal, he said, the tablets bring as much as $20 a hundred.

New Carrier Is Built In 15 Months

New York, Feb. 26 (AP)—Completed within 15 months after the laying of her keel, the 27,000-ton Essex class carrier USS Bennington was launched today.

Plans for the launching differed from the usual sliding down the ways. Instead, arrangements called for admission of 16 feet of water to the building dock through gates, so that the vessel could be floated off her keel blocks.

Flashes Of Life

DEFILATION
 New Britain, Conn. (AP)—A policeman waiting for the start of a session of the New Britain police school casually remarked to a stranger outside the meeting room, "I suppose they'll have some windbag up from Washington to speak to us."

"Probably will," agreed FBI Agent L. L. Menunier, the speaker of the evening.

WHAT'S IN A NAME

Temple, Tex. (AP)—Pfc. Warfeige (CQ) A. Charles of Norris-town, Pa., is a walking reminder of the League of Nations, Camp Hood's newspaper says.

In his given name, the WA stands for Wilson of America, RF for Raymond of France, EI for Emanuel of Italy and GE for George of England.

His middle name: Allies.

MODERN TRANSPORTATION

Kansas City (AP)—A city bus stopped and the driver announced: "A flat tire. You can wait for the next bus or get what rides you can."

Several of the passengers caught rides. The next bus picked up the remainder.

After a few blocks, this bus came to a halt. Declared the driver:

"We're out of gas. You can wait for the next bus or get what rides you can."

SOME HAT

Portland, Ore. (AP)—A sub-chaser, launched at the Albina shipyards, was named for the perky mink hat worn regularly by Miss Jean Muir, Oregon Journal reporter.

The name of the vessel: "Hell-hat."

THE UPS AND DOWNS

Los Angeles (AP)—Jessie Jorgensen said she couldn't go to divorce court because she faints in elevators, so Superior Judge Stanley Mosk adjourned from the 20th floor to the first.

Then he granted her a decree on her testimony that her husband treated her "like a house-keeper."

COUPONS, PLEASE

Omaha (AP)—Bernard L. Majewski, Chicago, chairman of the Petroleum Industry's War Council, and an outspoken foe of illegal market operations, told this story at a luncheon:

"We missed our train at Des Moines but got an automobile ride to Omaha. I discovered at the end of the trip the driver had bought his gasoline in the black market without coupons."

Athletics May Lose Veteran Infielder

Philadelphia, Feb. 26 (AP)—Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, said today he has been notified that Pete Suder, veteran infielder for the Athletics, has been called up for his pre-induction examination.

Suder, who lives in Aliquippa, Pa., is married and the father of two, told the A's manager "I don't think I'll be playing any ball this year."

At the same time Mack also heard from Lt. Bob Savage, former A's pitcher. Savage was wounded in the Italian campaign and is now in a hospital where doctors are trying to remove a piece of shrapnel from his shoulder.

The former pitcher revealed that physicians so far had been unable to remove the shrapnel and added, "I hope they will be able to dig it out because, more than anything else, I want to pitch for you again."

1,200 PAROLEES NOW IN SERVICE

Washington, Feb. 26 (AP)—More than 1,200 prisoners paroled from correctional institutions have gone directly into the Army in the last six months, the House Military committee learned today, and "well over 100,000" men who have been convicted of felonies are wearing Army khaki.

The information came from Col. Francis V. Keesling, Jr., Selective Service legislative representative, who informed the committee of action taken by draft officials in their quest for manpower.

The need was emphasized by Selective Service Director Lewis B. Hershey, who told the Senate Agriculture committee that six out of every ten men now being called up are rejected for physical reasons. The rising rate of rejections is probably due, he said, to the more advanced average age of men now being called. At present, there are 3,500,000 men classified as 4-F, Hershey said.

ELECTRIC REFRIGERATORS REFINISHED

"It Costs No More for BETTER WORK at FAIR'S"

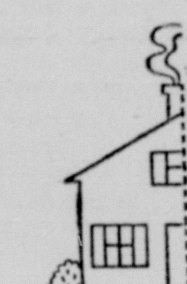

The Average American Family

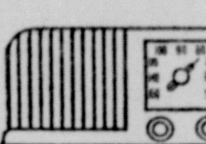

. . . includes 34/5 persons

. . . uses 3/5 of a bathtub

. . . owns 1/2 of a house

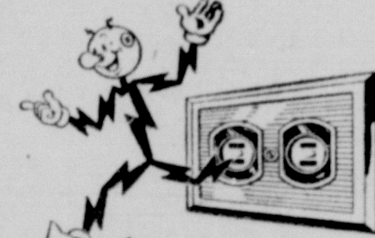

. . . listens to 9/10 of a radio

Gets about twice as much electricity for its money as it did 15 years ago!

PLUG IN...I'M REDDY!

STATISTICS are tricky things to toss around.

Obviously, 3/5 of a bathtub wouldn't hold water very well! That figure means merely that some 3 out of 5 American homes have bathtubs.

Obviously, also, the electric figure applies only to homes that have electric service (about 4 out of 5). But as a nation-wide average of all those homes, it is a fact—and surprising to many people.
